Free Range Chickens

All tnp chickens are free range and accredited by the RSPCA's farm assurance scheme. They are also grown to the highest standards set by the Red Tractor Farm Assurance Poultry Scheme and Organic Farmers & Growers accredit all of our organic poultry farms.

The special slow growing traditional breeds of chickens we use are especially bred for free range systems. Tnp chickens benefit from a diet of wholesome feed and an abundance of insects, grubs and grasses – for which they forage across acres of herb rich open pastures. Our farmers continuously trial different breeds and strains of chickens for suitability on our unique farming systems.

Norfolk Black Chicken

The Norfolk Black Chicken has been exclusively bred by us at tnp. Our ambition was to produce a truly unique product that stood head and shoulders above anything else.

On the back of the success of the Norfolk Black Turkey we thought it would be fantastic if we could have a Norfolk Black Chicken with the same prestigious quality attributes as the turkey.

We set out to create something new and exciting in the market that would raise the bar for all other poultry production.

The main criteria for this new breed was to have black feathers, excellent conformation, to be a good ranging bird with high welfare characteristics and above all else to taste incredible with fantastically moist and succulent meat.

This new breed of chicken is a result of years of research and development by tnp and is now available from Intwood Farm.
